Correspondence of the Albany Evening Journal.

Leirsic, May 15, 1851.

Letrate, May 15, 1851.

We had a pleasant journey, through a well cultivated country, and a succession of old and interesting German towns, from Dresden to Leipsic.—The first point of importance is Meissen, where the old castle in which the Princes of Saxony formerly resided, has been converted into a manufactory for the well known Dresden China or Porcelain. The first China that Europe produced, was made here in 1710.

While at this station we learned that the mother and son of Kossuth, with other members of the family of the Hungarian Patriot, were our follow passengers. They are on their way to America, via Hunburgh and England. I bearned from Mr. McCardy, at Vienna, that he remitted funds for this family (which had been saved from the wreck of their fortune) to Mr. Lawrence, in London, and that they were an their way to England but I did not anticipate the pleasune of meeting them.

don, and that they were an inter way to Engands but I did not anticipate the pleasure of meeting thom.

We have reached Leipsic at a moment of such deep interest, that I regret to leave it as soon as we are compelled to. This is the week of their greatest fair. The city is full of strangers, and intensity canamed with rich and beautiful fabries. There fairs draw people from all parts of Europe, to the number of 30, 40, 50, and in 1834, of 50,000. Then (1831) it is said that the sales amounted to eighty utilities of dollars.

Leipsic is the great book mart of Europe. Indeed, books form the most important part of the trade of Leipsic, amounting to nine or ten mill-loss of fances amountly. There are an hundred book publishers and booksellers here, and fire on the fance of the interest of the reachest of the presses, and there licking of type counded familiar. I went this morning through an entire street, despected to printing and binding. The rattling of presses, and the clicking of type counded familiarity. I then called upon Mr. Toucknitz, who is the Happer of Leipsic, whose establishment reminds me of the great American. Publishing Honce—Mr. Toucknitz re-publishes, in English, cheap editions of all the best works of English chanceling on Irving, and J. Fennimore Cooper, complete. Mr. Toucknitz's books are sold throughout Europe. It contains 10,000 inhabitants, who, if every outward sign and all the usual indications be not deceptive, are a prospetors and happy people; or, if not a happy they must be an ungrateful people, for of all the beautiful cities I have seen, this is the most lovely. There are many rich people—many more with a competency—still more who are growing rich—and yet more who live well upon their earnings. The hackmen and porters are well off.—Watters at the lottes are intelligent, gentlemanly young men. If there be any poor here they keep or are kept out of sight. And from all I can see it is no place for poor people. I don't believe that they can stay poor if they try. This looks extravagant, and is so, perhaps, but there is such an air of thrift all stound you, and everybody looks so independent and cozy, that I am charmed with the place.

I do not know that the prosperity of Frankfort has anything to do with its form of government, but the fact that it has been for centuries a free Representative city is significant. Where, as is the case here, the people are intelligent and vituous, they ought to be invested with the responsibilities of Government. And there are such places scattered, like green yants in a desert, through bilities of Government. And there are such pha-ces, scattered, like green spots in a desert, through-out oppressed and benighted Europe.

Though not agreeing with Pope to the exten-of his sentiment that that Government which is best administered is best, yet there is a great deal of truth and good sense in the remark. The best possible form of Government can be abused, and the worst can be rendered tolerable. Helgium, for example, under a Monarchy, is among the most prosperous and happy nations upon the carth.

A convention has been called to a semble a Madison on the 4th of August next, to nominal candidates for this office. Another conventions been called at Platterille, on the 30th. S far as the Democratic party is concerned in the move, we asknowledge no allegiance sufficient strong to induce us to enduse, even in our individual capacity, the political nominees for the office.

Still further the Courier goes on to say ; Still further the Comier goes on to say:

The Constitution has sought to place this office as far as possible from such influences, by declaring that no election of Judges shall take place within thirty days of a general election; let the people add a double barrier, by declaring that is conducting this, it shall be still further remove in principle and practice. When the guest of the city arrived at Castle Garden, and had been greeted by the cheers of the countless thousands assembled the Pattery, Morris Francis, President of the Board of Aldermen, addressed ione in a brief wel-coming speech, of which the following is an exrzet :

Gen. Scott le New York lu '18.

"In contemplating upon the thilling events which have characterized your history, we find so much to excite our admiration, and to call into action the patrotic emotions of the heart, that we feel proud, as American citizens, that among the many illustrious names which now are, or may hereafter be emblazoned upon the escutch one of our country, yours will appear in hold relief, as among her noblest and most honored sons; for whether upon the plains of Chippa wa, or family! I much whether at the sortic of Fort File, or on the shores of Yera Chuz, or bravely contending at the pass of Cerro Gordo—whether catering in thimph the capital of Mexico, and these planning the American standard upon its battlement—whether in the warnion's tent, at the soleron hour of midnight, arranging the operations of the coming day, while your faithful soldiers were slumbering around you, dreaming of their friends and their homes; or whether attending upon the worn had the definer of the capital and their homes; or whether attending upon the worn had the definer and the large that worn. "If I had looked to considerations metely personal, I should have declined the high distinction tendered me; but I knew I was to be received by you as the representative of that victorious army it was so lately my good fortune to contamand—and army that has carried the glory of American arms to a height that has won universal admiration and the gratitude of all hearts at home.
"A very large portion of the mak and file of that army, regulars and volunteers, went both from the city of New York, to conquer or to die. It was my happy let to witness their inviteible valor and prowess. All dangers, difficulties, and handships were met and conquered. It was my happy let to withers their invincible valor and prowess. All dangers, difficulties, and handships were met and conquered.

The New Orleans Data, a dashing independ d paper, copies the famous story,-related b d Gay, Steele, about Gen'l Pierre's temarkat merosity, in formishing a crying youngster with e cash wherewith to purchase a cent's worth of andy,—and has its own laugh over it, as follows

Now, if the democrats have any sense—and there are not a few of them who manifest very little of that common faculty,—they will never any inquire into the truth of the foregoing story, but admit it to be literally correct: Gen. A cent will buy a half a dozen fishbooks: a cent will buy, at least, three cakes—more than enough for any ordinary juvenile stomach: a cent will buy just enough cando for any control boy to cat, and too much for the uncertain juvenile stomachs bereabours.

The whole North-West is crying out for a bet-ter mail system, and few who know the civil qualifications of Gen. Scott, do not think it pro-bable that our mails would be any better man-ged than now.— Bather clausily expressed, but every one ows that they would be better managed, as a atter of course.

A Walcone Rain.-The windows of heave pence yesterday, and pointed down upon the rely earth torrents of tain. It was universally electived in city and country, and as it extended hr into the interior will be worth thousands an onsands to the farmers.

THE NOUNATION.-Whatever may have be THE MOUSTINN.—Whatever may have been the feeling prior to the foundation, we feel confident that union, harmony, and ficod feeling will pervale the Whig rabes, and a triumphant victory awaits our country's greatest Hero, in Novembenext. The history of Gen. Winfield Scott is familiar to all, and his many years service on the battle field, is about to be rewarded by making him Chief Magistrate of the Nation, the highest office in the reverse of the Aration, the highest office in the reverse of the Aration, the highest ice in the power of the American people to stow.

Hon. William A. Graham, of North Carolina, the nomince for Vice President, and at present the able Secretary of the Navy, is a man of rare qualifications, has been Governor at his own State, and Senator in Congress, and in each and every place of public trust, has distinguished himself for ability and fidelity to the country as lease. The ticket here presented is worthy the earnest, united, and willing support of the Whig Party.—Let the watch word be Scott, Graham and vice the Watch word by Scott, Graham and vice the Watch watch word by Scott, Graham and vice the Watch watch words.

—Sheboygan Murcury, A Living Load.—The Mayflower, on Friday uight, started from Buildo with one thousand and three passengers—six hundred and eighty seven of whom she brought through to Detroit.

When she arrived at the Depot dock she looked like a hire of human beings, so black was het decks with the crowds of puseingers. This looks as if this line was doing a living business. City Matters.

Miss HAYES' CONCERT.—We went to press anday evening too carly to enable us to notic the second part of Cathorine Haves' concert, with ny detail, and we do not like to let the occasio s off, without expressing our gratification. Ve did not hear the opening Duet, "Quanto Auto-" sung by Miss Hayes and Herr Mengis The t piece of the 2d part that we did hear, was Kyle's Solo on the flute. No one who ha it heard this instrument in the hands of a mas er, such as Mr. Kyle certainly is, can form any ception of the music which it is capable. The ce was heartily applauded. Herr Masons, in Mei Rampolli," and "the Happy Switzen," wa reived with great favor, and the latter song wa adly encored. Miss Hayes song the wild, plainballad, "Savouracen Deelish," feeling th it of it, and looking it in every feature, s, altogether, the triumph of the evening. This, was warmly encored, and M.-s Hayes re-inded by singing "Thin is my home." Her piece was "The Last Rose of Summer," nd the audience could scarcely bear enough of the sweet strains of the accomplished and fasci-ating vocalist. She appeared in answer to the oud andlong centinued applause of the house nd bowed her thanks. Miss Haves gave another Concert last evening
